Herman's meticulously researched book draws on a wide range of sources, including leaked documents, interviews with whistleblowers, and cutting-edge scientific studies. He reveals how the virus may have escaped from a Wuhan lab, how the government and the media suppressed information about the virus, and how the scientific community has been complicit in the cover-up.

Herman argues that the COVID-19 pandemic is not simply a natural disaster, but a man-made crisis that has been exacerbated by the failures of the government, the media, and the scientific community. He calls for a full investigation into the origins of the virus, the government's response, and the role of the media and the scientific community in suppressing the truth.

COVID-19 Under Fire is a must-read for anyone who wants to understand the truth about the COVID-19 pandemic and the failures of the government, the media, and the scientific community. It is a powerful indictment of the status quo and a call for accountability.
