The book is divided into six sections, each covering a different period of Southern literary history. The first section, "The Antebellum South," explores the literature of the pre-Civil War era, including works by William Faulkner, Flannery O'Connor, and Eudora Welty. The second section, "The Civil War and Reconstruction," looks at the literature of the Civil War and Reconstruction periods, including works by Ambrose Bierce, Sidney Lanier, and Lafcadio Hearn. The third section, "The New South," examines the literature of the late 19th and early 20th centuries, including works by Mark

Twain, Joel Chandler Harris, and Zora Neale Hurston. The fourth section, "The Modern South," looks at the literature of the 20th and 21st centuries, including works by William Faulkner, Flannery O'Connor, Eudora Welty, and Tennessee Williams. The fifth section, "The Literary Landscape," provides an overview of the region's literary landmarks, including museums, libraries, and bookstores. The final section, "Resources," provides a list of additional resources for studying Southern literature.

Dixie Journey of Discovery is an essential resource for anyone interested in the literary history of the American South. Written by a team of experts, the book provides a comprehensive overview of the region's rich literary heritage. With over 100 entries on authors, books, and places, the book is an indispensable guide for anyone planning a literary pilgrimage to the American South.
