Lyrical Explorations of the Natural World

Through her evocative language and keen observations, she gives voice to the voices of animals, the whisper of the wind, and the murmuring of rivers. Each poem reads like an intimate encounter with the untamed wilderness, inviting readers to pause and appreciate the intricate beauty that surrounds us.

“In "Wolf Song," Dubrow captures the primal spirit of a wolf with stunning imagery:

I am the wolf, the stalker, fierce and free,
A phantom in the moonlight, wild and strong.

My teeth are sharp, my claws are keen,
I am the hunter, the king of the night.”

With equal sensitivity, Dubrow explores the fragility and resilience of nature, reminding us of our interconnectedness and shared responsibility.

“In "Elegy for a Dead Bee," she mourns the loss of a small creature with poignant grace:

Little bee, your wings are still,
Your body cold and lifeless now.
You flew so far, you worked so hard,
But now your journey's done.”

Celebrating Diversity and Environmental Awareness

Wild Kingdom Poems is not only an ode to nature's beauty, but also a powerful call for environmental awareness. Dubrow celebrates the rich diversity of life on our planet, from the smallest insects to the majestic whales. She also confronts the challenges facing our natural world, urging us to be mindful of our impact and work towards protecting our precious ecosystems.

“In "The Plastic Straw," Dubrow laments the devastating effects of human pollution:

Oh, plastic straw, you are a blight,
Upon our oceans, a terrible sight.

You choke the turtles, entangle the whales,
And poison the fish with your toxic trail.”

Through her evocative imagery and thoughtful reflections, Dubrow inspires readers to connect with the natural world on a deeper level and to make conscious choices that support its conservation.
