The stories in Have the Data are set on a variety of planets and space stations, and they feature a wide range of alien species. From the furry and friendly Glurfs to the intelligent and enigmatic Tulpas, each species has its own unique way of seeing the world.

The humans in Have the Data are just as diverse as the aliens. There are scientists, engineers, diplomats, and even a few tourists. And while they may not always understand the aliens' ways, they are always willing to learn and to try to bridge the gap between their two species.

The stories in Have the Data are full of humor, heart, and insight. They are a reminder that even though we may be different, we can still find common ground and learn from each other.

Here are a few of the stories from Have the Data:

- The Glurfs: A group of humans are stranded on a planet inhabited by the furry and friendly Glurfs. The humans are initially unsure of how to communicate with the Glurfs, but they soon learn that the Glurfs are very expressive with their body language.
- The Tulpas: A human diplomat is sent to negotiate with the intelligent and enigmatic Tulpas. The diplomat quickly learns that the Tulpas are not like any other species she has ever encountered before.
- The Tourists: A group of human tourists visit a planet inhabited by a species of giant insects. The tourists are initially terrified of the insects, but they soon learn that the insects are actually very gentle and friendly.

Have the Data is a must-read for fans of science fiction, humor, and heartwarming stories. It is a book that will make you laugh, think, and see the world in a new way.
