Excerpt

Shen sat in his luxurious office, overlooking the bustling city below. He was a man of power and influence, but he was also a man with many enemies. He knew that there were people who wanted him dead, but he was not afraid. He had survived countless attempts on his life, and he was confident that he would continue to do so.

Just then, his phone rang. He picked it up and answered it.

"Hello," he said.

"Mr. Shen," a voice said. "This is Li. I have some information for you."

Shen's heart skipped a beat. Li was one of his most trusted lieutenants. If he had information for Shen, it must be important.

"What is it?" Shen asked.

"It's about your enemies," Li said. "They're planning to attack you."

Shen's face hardened. He had known that his enemies were planning something, but he had not expected them to attack so soon.

"When?" Shen asked.

"Tomorrow night," Li said. "They're going to hit your compound."

Shen took a deep breath. He knew that he had to act quickly. He could not let his enemies destroy everything he had built.

"Thank you for the information, Li," Shen said. "I will be prepared."

Shen hung up the phone and sat there for a moment, thinking. He knew that he was in danger, but he was not afraid. He was Shen, and he would not be defeated.
